FOREWORD

The compilation and production of any school yearbook is no simple task. This task is further complicated if the yearbook staff seeks to be imaginative and innovative in its approach while remaining within the restrictive limits of what a yearbook is. By developing our theme from cover to cover in the manner found in this book we hope to achieve these ends.

This year, as in the past, the DOLPHIN staff sincerely wishes that you enjoy our endeavors-today, tomorrow, and twenty years hence. It is your book about you; published for you.

Serving Weber

(1950 - 1970)

A man's true worth is seldomly measured accurately in his own lifetime. Only his absence penetratingly reveals the vastness of the void that remains. The inevitable eventually overtakes us all. Teachers enter our hall, stay awhile, and go. Their reasons for leaving are myriad. Oftentimes this leaving is most unfortunate. Sometimes it is sad.

THEME

Yesterday All My Troubles

Seemed So Far Away . . .

Yes, I believe in yesterday. Tomorrow? Oh, I believe in that too. Right now, however, I'm feeling somewhat nostalgic. By the way, let me introduce myself. I'm the Senior Class of Nineteen Hundred and Seventy-One, and I'm here to tell you a story. It's about the people and events that have constituted my four year stay here at Weber. Sometimes it has been hard work; at other times a lot of fun; and still at other times, seemingly, downright impossible. But see for yourself. Come along; join me and my

“Reflections . . .”

Four years ago I walked into a new world. I had come from a phase of my life in which I was at the top, and entered into a new phase in which I had stepped up only to find myself at the bottom. I felt insignificant, alone, and outside the stream of strangers who bustled about me. The situation changed rapidly. My fellow freshman and I were at first gawked at by the upper classmen. Some snickers were heard. Then the selling of the elevator passes began. We knew then we had been accepted.

Yes, I Believe . . .

In Yesterday . . .

Seemed So Far Away.

One certainly gains one's confidence fast. By my sophomore year, I had reached the simple conclusion that there was little more I could learn. Perfection was at hand — in my person. I can't say that all of the teachers agreed. One thing was certain, however, I knew the ropes so well that an unsuspecting freshman became the proud owner of the elevator pass I had purchased a year earlier. Yesterday, all my troubles.

I Believe in Yesterday . . .

Time was flying. I had become a junior. I began to feel different. Call it maturity. People became important. The world and its problems grew before my eyes. The future became a concern of my present. I had a lot to discover. Where did I fit into all of this? Where was I going? Who was I? Those yesterdays were not all fun and games.

Yesterday . . . Troubles . . . Away

That wild change going on inside me that began in my junior year accelerated when I became a senior. No matter how I had felt before; now, I knew I was a man and intensely desired to be accepted as a man. I had ideas that had to be expressed. I realized now life with all of its responsibilities was only now first beginning. Yesterday all my troubles seemed so far away.

I Believe in Yesterday . .

and Tomorrow . . .

That's how I feel about these past four years. A lot has happened. The years have been sometimes happy and sometimes sad. The events were plentiful. Some hit close to home. Others I could care less about. I have been part of a school. As a matter of fact, my fellow students, my teachers and I are the part of which the sum total is Weber High School. Yesterday can never fully be recaptured as it was, but it is nice to remember

The Search for Identity

THE SEARCH FOR IDENTITY

The search for self-identity has been a perennial quest among people of all ages and cultures. Among the youth of today this search is often termed an "identity crisis", which gives this quest for a conscious self-image an overtone of fatalism and impending catastrophe. In the physiohistorical perspective of identity seeking this need not necessarily be so. The search for the conscious self-image should and ought to designate a necessary turning point, a crucial moment in the growth, development, recovery, and further differentiation of the personality. A continual identity quest should be directed by an intellectual search for principles of lasting value and a determination fortified by moral courage and sincerity. Otherwise the growth and development of the personality is stunted, paralyzed and without direction.

The confusion, frustration, and anger among some of today's youth as they grasp for a neohumanism in the technocratic view of modern society can be resolved if they come to realize the values of Christ's teachings. The protest of youth involved in a warped humanitarian approach ranges from romantic Edwardianism to the violent "New Left"; they range from a reactionary resistance to all machine conformity to a reformulation of human rights and dignities in an irreversibly technological future. It is no wonder then that in seeking to find their self-identity that youth is perplexed and sometimes bizarre in what they do.

Yet the search of youth does not seem to be for all permissiveness, but rather for new ways of directly facing up to what really counts. To accomplish this the modern neohumanistic youth must not repeat the mistakes of so many of his predecessors throughout the ages - fall prey to Materialism, Deism, Agnosticism, Atheism. Man is not self sufficient, and he will never discover his real identity apart from God. The neohumanistic youth must accept, return to and acknowledge his Creator, God, and accept, no matter how inconvenient, the teaching of his Redeemer, Jesus Christ. Then will he find his true identity and be able to work for and participate effectively in the resurrection of the world and mankind.

Guidance Department

Let the right way be shown, and the seeker will follow it. O, how great are the turmoils and despairs of the seeker. Freedom of choice has not yielded freedom of mind. But there is support that will not seem like a crutch—the Guidance Department.

Mr. T. Lisowski accepts Honorary Alumnus Plaque from Mr. L. Svedlenka.

Sitting: Mr. Harold Herx, Ph.D., University of Chicago; Mr. T. Lisowski, B.S., M.Ed., Ill. State University, Loyola U.; N.H.S. Moderator.
Standing: Fr. Wojcik, B.A., M.Ed., St. Louis U., Savannah State College; Guidance, English I & III, Religion I, Weber News, Music Dept. Moderator; Fr. Edwin Michael, C.R., B.A., M.Ed., St. Louis U., De Paul U.; Counseling, Guidance; Mr. Pawelski, B.A., Univ. of Ill.; Social Living, Guidance.

Social Services

A school is a complicated system. All kinds of people make it work. No job is insignificant. We have been fortunate that all levels of our system have cooperated to make this school successful.

FATHER'S CLUB

The contribution of the Father's Club to the welfare of Weber High School cannot go unmentioned. The unrelentless efforts of these dedicated men to aid the school mainly through their sponsored events always will be greatly appreciated. The most spectacular of these events was the well known indoor carnival.

Seated: C. Calandra, Fr. A. Kocon, L. Pawelski; Standing: J. Fritsch, J. Roman,

MOTHER'S CLUB

The Weber High School Mother's Club, Headed by Fr. Clem Weiss C.R., has done much to make Weber a school we can be proud of. Success is the mark of all their programs.

Seated: Mrs. I. Kidon, Mrs. F. Wajda, Fr. C. Weiss, Mrs. G. Guida, Mrs. D. Skrede, Mrs. J. Lupo. Standing: Mrs. J. Stojak, Mrs. M. Chmura, Mrs. D. Gorski, Mrs. D. Wanat, Mrs. S. Sweda, Mrs. N. Briggs.

LADIES AUXILIARY

The annual card and bunco card party is a feature sponsored by the diligent efforts of the Ladies Auxiliary Club. This group of ladies, friends of Weber aid the student body by providing the school with funds to help support the high school and its programs.

Seated: Mrs. F. Becker (Pres.), Fr. E. Bak, Mrs. P. Grelecki (Vice Pres.). Standing: Mrs. M. Klesta (Fin. Sec.), Mrs. I. Penkala (Corr. Sec.), Mrs. H. Kamke (Rec. Sec.), Mrs. V. West (Treas.).

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

It is said that a student never really graduates from Weber. Instead he remains a part of the school long after graduation. The Alumni Association keeps its members in close contact with their Alma Mater.

Seated: L. Svadlenka (1963), J. Cesario (1958), Fr. J. Przysucha, C.R.; Standing: C. Jurczak (1936), G. Poterek (1965), B. Bugielski (1965), M. Sieracki (1942), G. Dindia (1965).

Religion

Faith in a modern world became the theme of the Religion Department during our four years at Weber. Through the department's unrelentless efforts, they hoped to impress the importance of Religion in our lives. They hoped to instill in us a deep feeling of faith, a wholesome philosophy towards life which would compliment the Christian experience and develop us in such a way so that religion would become part of our very lives.

Senior, Tom Leverso, wonders whether his homework is correct.

Math Department

Due to the rapid growth of science and technology a strong math department is a prime requisite in today's educational system. Weber's math department need not take a back seat to any. Throughout the past four year, by providing thorough and careful training in the concepts and techniques of mathematics, the department successfully prepared us for leadership in all math related fields.

L. Kingsbury seeks the ultimate mathematical answer.

J. Elwart ponders an age old mathematical problem.

Business

The business world is a vast and everchanging one. We were first introduced into this complex sphere in our third year with Typing and Business Law. Those of us who took Business went on to Bookkeeping and Accounting in the Senior year, where we learned about society in terms of international and domestic finance, labor and economics.

Left to Right: Mr. S. Antrim, B.S., M.B.A., Southwestern College, Pepperdine College, Business Law, Bookkeeping and Accounting, Asst. Varsity Basketball and Baseball coach; Mr. G. Poterek, B.S., Bradley U., Typing, Business Law, Track coach, Mr. L. Carroll, B.S., M.B.A., Lewis College, Roosevelt U., Chairman Business Dept.

Physical Education

The intramural program here at Weber was designed to physically condition us and provide us with a fine outlet for excess energy and natural high spirits. We shall remember the intramural football, basketball, volleyball and softball games the Phys. Ed. Department promoted to teach sportsmanship and ideals which would be carried into all other sports.

Fellow classmates show no mercy.

J. Plovnich shows how it is done.

Giving concerts at sites ranging from football stadiums to their own musical setting at school, the Weber High School Marching and Symphonic Band is still rated one of the best in the city. Not only is the band an extracurricular activity but it is an accredited course. The band, with Mr. Christopher Filler - their new instructor, performed on several occasions, the highlight being the Spring Fest concert.

Debate

Debating is intellectual sport of the roughest kind—one wonders whether Cicero himself could have withstood the rhetorical rigors of modern debating. This year the squads have been led by Mr. Frazier to speaking engagements at many places playing their game of verbal ping-pong which only the best minds can hack. Much fortitude is needed in this activity, which is one of the most intellectually challenging that a student can engage in.

PUBLICITY & ARTS CLUB

The avant-garde flair of Matisse, the beauty of Renoir, the stately impressionism of Toulouse Lautrec, the mixed idolatry in art of Henri Rousseau, and the humanism of Claude Monet are all qualities inherent in the members of Weber's Publicity and Arts. Having graced our cafeteria and halls with priceless samples of their genius, under the skillful connoisseurship of Mr. G. Bob, the flowering artists of this club may well prove to be the masters of tomorrow's galleries.

Dolphin '71

Once again, the yearbook staff have compiled for the student body the various memories of the year. This year's theme of "REFLECTIONS", the senior staff has hoped to express the reminiscences of their four years at Weber. Being our last book, we tried to make it the best we have ever produced. We hope you will enjoy its many changes and improvements.

Varsity Football

As we look back on the 0-9 record of the 1970 football team, all of us would just like to forget it, especially the Seniors of 71. It's always nice to have a team with a good record in your last year.

Things just didn't go right for Coach Ron Dianovsky in his first year as head mentor. In the first few days of practice, Senior quarterback Bill Buckley broke his hand. His replacement, a sophomore, did a fine job of filling in and eventually became the number one signal-caller. One of Coach Dianovsky's biggest problems was the lack of size. It seemed every team we played was bigger than us, and no matter how hard the players tried they were just outmuscled every Sunday.

M. Torello looks for daylight in Loyola defense as E. Polfus comes in to lend a hand.

Freshman Football

RESULTS

The 1970 freshman football team was one of the biggest and most talented to come upon Weber in the past ten years. The freshman, under new head coach James Gipson, achieved a 4-2-1 record over the season. The team's only setbacks came at the hands of Brother Rice and Fenwick, who had to come from behind to win 24-18.

Senior Basketball

Coach Janka tried. In fact, everyone tried. But despite all this trying, the best the Seniors could do this year was come up with four wins in 27 games for their new coach Ed Janka.

The Heavies opened the 1970-71 year with victories over Ida Crown and Leo. But then disaster struck, and before they won their next game the Heavies had lost 11 straight. But the players kept trying. Try as they might, however, the Seniors just couldn't win one. The only victory in league play came against Holy Trinity. In that one, the Heavies had everything going right as they won 61-53. It was a long year for all, but things are looking good for the future. Coach Janka has some good underclassmen coming up and his recruiting program should help the cause too.

Tiptoes for two.

Varsity-Junior

Many good things were expected of this year's Juniors, but somewhere along the trail things just went haywire for Coach Janka and his crew. The Lights started in the same fashion as the Heavies by winning the first two. After victories over Leo and De La Salle everyone was singing a happy tune. But then they lost four straight, from which they never really recovered. They entered the season with high hopes despite a 4-10 exhibition slate, and they were in a fight all the way until they lost to Loyola 68-47 on the second to last weekend of play. The Juniors finished with a 8-16 record far below what was expected.

Frosh-Soph Basketball

The 1970-71 editions of Weber's Flys and Bantams basketball teams turned out to be the only winning teams we had this past year. Both squads ended up their seasons with winning records under new coach Steve Antrim. The Flys finished the season with a fine 8-2 record and a big win over Gordon. The Bantams also finished on a good note by upending the Gordon bantams, the best frosh-soph team in the league. So it looks like Coach Janka will have some bright prospects joining the varsity ranks next season.

TRACK TEAM

For the fourth year in a row the Weber Track men are under the leadership of a new coach. This year, the job of making the Red Runners a winning outfit was in the hands of Mr. Greg Poterek. Mr. Poterek, who is relatively new to the track world, is looking forward to a good season. And with the wealth of talent on the squad, it looks like he can't miss.

BASEBALL

This year's baseball team cannot go unmentioned in their enormous efforts. This season, to say the least, has been fantastic. So much so, they are now first in the North Section. Under the leadership of P. Camastro spurred on to obtain a 6-2 record. With their talent and hard work, the North Section championship should be a cinch.

SWIMMING

The Weber swimmers, along with the football and basketball players and the track team had to adjust to a new coach this past year. But despite all the problems a new coach usually has, Mr. John Roth managed to guide the Weber Watermen to a winning season. Co-captains, Ed Seagraves and Bruce Jack, led the swim team to its 7 and 3 mark. The best in six years. Coach Roth is looking forward to another fine season next year, when he'll have 25 lettermen returning.

CHEERLEADERS

Once again the mutual efforts of Weber's boy and girl cheerleaders succeeded in arousing the spirit and confidence of both the team and student body. A small but energetic group, lead the popular cheers at the many sports events. This year, the new addition of the freshman football cheerleaders contributed immensely to the spirit of the freshman team.

BOWLING

Weber's bowlers kept up the fine tradition of championship bowling this past year by making it to the City championship. However, the Big Red couldn't hack it in the finals as they lost to St. Rita by a mere four pins. Mr. Dykla's keglers made it to the city finals by tripping Holy Trinity 8-0 in a playoff. Standouts on this year years' Senior Varsity were captain Stan Skorniak and all-Catholic bowler, Wally Smanski.

RING DAY

Four Years had passed and our experiences at Weber had bore its share of joy and success and its share of sorrow and failure. However, in our future was that distant day when we too would wear the gold and ruby-ring and be, the senior. That day came one sunny day and that which was so far and unreal became so near and real. We are now the seniors.

Fr Chester's blessing of the rings.

The pride that is the senior.

PROM

The night was young; the stars shone brightly, and the moon smiled. It was the night of the prom - a night whose magic shall always remain indelibly on the minds of the seniors and their dates.

Once again the prom was held at the very popular Carousel in Arlington Heights. Because of the picturesque setting, the enjoyable entertainment, the laughter and joy May 14, 1971 could never be forgotten.

STATE OF ILLINOIS

OFFICE OF THE GOVERNOR

REMARKS OF RICHARD B. OGILVIE GOVERNOR OF ILLINOIS WEBER HIGH SCHOOL COMMENCEMENT CHICAGO, ILLINOIS, MAY 29, 1971

Father Mitoraj, Bishop Murphy, President Maag, members of the graduating class, parents and friends:

I am honored and proud to share with you this hour of commemoration and renewal.

What we are celebrating here today is more than the completion of a dozen years of formal schooling, and more than your arrival on the scenes of action.

Those cynics who have been so quick to abandon this generation of young people to the scrap heap of abandoned hopes should note that we are celebrating our continuing faith in the future, and in the young men who will guide it.

We are gathered here—students and parents and instructors and friends—in a spirit of renewal...renewal both of our memories of the hard lessons of the years here at Weber and elsewhere, and a renewal of our bright hopes for tomorrow.

We meet here for a fleeting instant in time to assure that this moment and this place will successfully transit the perilous gap between those very real lessons and the yet unfulfilled dreams.

I do not regard it as my function today to give you some well-chosen words on how to make your way on the exciting and sometimes-frightening journey you are about to undertake.

As the father of one teen-age daughter, the demands on my good advice are heavy enough without trying to take on some 250 sons as well.

Rather, I would like to tell you a little of the world which awaits you...the world which your parents and those of our generation have made for you, and stand ready to tender into your care and safekeeping.

You will enter it through many doors—through college, through the military service, and through your jobs. But whatever route you choose as you leave Weber behind, you will find both rewards and frustrations.

It is not always a pretty world. It is plagued by wars, and hunger, and illiteracy, and racial strife.

But as you begin to come to grips in a substantive way with those problems, it is important to maintain a sense of perspective and balance.

For the imperfect world which is your legacy is certainly no worse—and probably somewhat better—than the world of shattering depression and worldwide conflict in which your parents grew to maturity.

What has changed—and changed very drastically indeed—is our perception of the problems we face, and our intolerance for the old answers which have not worked.

Because you are the first generation of an American age of affluence—an age in which the benefits of material prosperity have been extended to the vast majority of our citizens—you are impatient—as you should be—to get on with the challenges which remain. In a context of widespread plenty, you find more intolerable than ever the poverty which plagues a large—although shrinking—sector of our society.

At your time of life, we were deeply concerned with learning to make a living. You will be more concerned with learning to live.

And in that sense, you are fortunate indeed. For you can—as young people are doing everywhere these days—concern yourselves with the quality of our lives rather than the struggle for sheer survival.

There is certainly no shortage of problems on which you can loose your considerable talents. An imperfect world awaits your energies and your dedication.

In saying that, we are touching upon an important but often overlooked fact. And that fact is this:

Above all else, this world—most especially, this American nation—is a world of opportunity, a world in which the hard worker, the solid producer, can hack out his niche of immortality. The American dream—as trite as it may sound to our sophisticated ears—is still very much alive.

That fact is all too easily forgotten. Our problems seem to linger on and get worse, despite our best efforts to solve them. Events, rather than men, seem to be in control.

But, no matter how powerless you may feel to change the world around you...don't for one minute believe that notion.

Karl Marx notwithstanding, it is men who shape events. History has no motive force of its own. This world is yours to shape and change, and not that of some invisible historical movement.

And because the problems may often seem unconquerable, a sense of perspective is in order. Before you condemn your parents' generation for the manner in which they botched things up, it is important to understand how much they and their contemporaries have achieved.

—When you were born, polio was the greatestcrippler of children.

—Flying to the moon was a reality only in the most outlandish comic strips.

—A high school graduate had only about a one-in-four chance of going on to college.

—Two out of five American families had an average annual income of less than $3,000, somewhere near what we call poverty today.

The fact that many problems still remain should not obscure the very real accomplishments which have shaped the world into which you are about to take the plunge. I suspect there are very few of your parents who would trade the so-called "good old days" they knew as children for the age on which you are about to embark.

There is an old story about the young man graduating from high school who could not understand how his parents could be so ignorant. And four years later, when he was about to leave college, he was amazed to find how much they had learned in the past few years.

If the first half of the axiom describes your own feelings today, I would urge you only to remain receptive to the second half.

Maintain that sense of balance and good judgment which will enable you to see things in the perspective so essential to real progress toward our common objectives.

Armed with that perspective, and the education you have received here at Weber and in the institutions to which you go from here, you can change the world.

Ours is a society which places a high premium on performance. In virtually every human endeavor, we reserve the rewards for those who get things done, for those whose actions match the words we all profess.

Never has a generation been so well prepared for that kind of performance. Never has a generation seen its objectives in such sharp focus. Never have young men emerging from our basic educational system been so imbued with a spirit of dedication.

But idealism alone will not solve our problems. It must be tempered with an abiding sense of what is possible, and an unswerving determination to act within those broad limits to achieve certain ends.

It must be fortified with an unshakeable faith in moral principle, and a nobility and strength of character of the sort to which this school is dedicated.

And your idealism must be rooted in the traditions which unite us in this delicate fabric of society, and in a firm understanding of that which has gone before.

Those who fail to learn from history, a wise man once observed, are condemned to repeat it.

There is no point in denying the fact that those of us in your parents' generation have made mistakes—many of them.

But to you graduates I say this: Don't repeat them. Your challenge is to make new mistakes.

Now, if that confuses you, let me explain. Because you are men, subject to all the frailties of human nature, you are destined to make mistakes—but only if you resolve that the natural fear of failure will not paralyze your capacity for constructive action.

Nations have not been built by timid souls who are unwilling to suffer the setbacks inherent in all human action. Problems are not conquered by those too quick to accept temporary failure as permanent defeat.

So, as you leave this school behind, my charge to you would be to become the men of action, the achievers of our society, those on whom others can rely to tackle the tough problems and get the job done.

I offer you that challenge in the full realization of how well you have been prepared to meet it.

The enviable record of Weber High School as a producer of scholars of excellence will stand you in good stead as you begin to pick your way along the exciting road which lies ahead. And, I might add, it gives you a high standard to live up to.

That record is typical of many in the diverse private and parochial school systems of Illinois, and it is one good reason why I have committed my administration so strongly to the concept of providing some assistance to those systems.

I am extremely pleased that legislative approval—at long last—is in sight for that concept, and I can think of no single act since I have been governor which will give me more pleasure than signing my name to that bill when it reaches my desk.

To those sincere critics who question the wisdom of that legislation, I would offer this reply:

Look at this graduating class. Here are 256 good reasons for aid to parochial schools. Let that be our answer.

So, now, you have completed one journey, and are about to embark on another—that of putting to work the knowledge and the principles you have gained here and in your homes.

You have strived. You have persevered. And, now, you have triumphed. Each of you represents the immeasurable success which is the graduation and going forth of a single educated, civilized human being.

All of us—your teachers, your friends, and most important, your parents—can share in your triumph and the great pride of this moment.

Weber High School already has made its mark upon your lives. You have completed the beginning of your education. What remains is yours to shape and carve out of the unknown fragments of the future.

H. G. Wells once wrote that "human history is becoming more and more a race between education and catastrophe."

On this occasion of renewal, I would wish you graduates the stamina and the strength of commitment to bar the gates against the incessant knocking of catastrophe.

If you persist in your confidence and your commitment, you will win the race for humanity.

And in so doing, you will build a better future for yourselves and your children, to whom you—one day much sooner than you think—will have to answer for what you have achieved, and failed to achieve.

To each of you, as you set out on your great adventure, I offer my sincere congratulations.

Our future is yours. I wish you Godspeed.
